AN UNRIVALLED ELECTRONIC DICTIONARY... The Oxford English Dictionary is widely acknowledged to be the ultimate authority on the English language. The largest dictionary of any language in the world, it charts the meaning and evolution of over 600,000 words over the last 1500 years. The online edition ...offers users the chance to explore the English language as never before possible

GETTING THE MOST OUT OF OED ONLINE * Take a look at our Powerpoint tutorial for a step-by-step demonstration of key features. We can e-mail this to you on request. * Visit our help pages for information on just about everything OED Online does: <http://www.oed.com/help/> * Take a tour of OED Online: <http://www.oed.com/tour/> * For information on using OED Online as a language research tool see: <http://www.oed.com/help/worksheets/> (written by T. T. L. Davidson, Department of Linguistics & Phonetics, University of Leeds)

ADVANCED SEARCH OPTIONS Full information and tutorial searches are available at <http://dictionary.oed.com/help/> but here is a quick summary of what the Advanced Search options enable you to do: * Search using Boolean operators, and across different fields, in a single search e.g. how many words are illustrated by a citation from Jane Austen AND come from French OR German? * Perform case-sensitive searches e.g. find all references to BASIC the computer programming language, and not the adjective "basic" * Search for accented and other special characters e.g. non-Roman alphabets (such as Hebrew and Arabic), chemical and mathematical symbols, and Old English characters * Find all words derived from a specified language with a single search e.g. a search for "Sanskrit" in the new Language Names field will also look for abbreviated forms such as 'Skr.', 'Skt.', and 'Sk.' * Restrict a search to entries with a particular part of speech e.g. everything from nouns and adjectives to conjunctions and interjections * Search the OED's pronunciations to find all the words containing a particular sound

PROMOTE AWARENESS OF OED ONLINE... We would be delighted to send you brochures and/or posters for OED Online. Please let us know if you would like some. A PDF of the brochure can be viewed at: <http://www.oed.com/pdfs/oed-brochure.pdf>
