About IT Tech Encyclopedia

We're a global business that delivers business information, events, media, training, and marketing and data services to the technology industry. Our audience and solutions serve the entire technology ecosystem. This includes the engineers designing the latest device, to the developers coding apps for it, to the telecoms professionals behind the infrastructure that allows it to communicate with the world, to the IT and business executives who turn the device – and the data and possibilities it creates – into bottom-line business and customer value.

As technology has become pervasive and connects the world, we get to serve the people who define how we live, work and play. Our mission is to inform and inspire them, with high-value content and business information targeted to specific technologies and disciplines—always considering how those technologies and disciplines work together in an increasingly connected world.
